Subject: RE: Redacted Dominion-filed document

David,

Any party is entitled to a copy of the unredacted version of Exhibit 173 and Dominion would be glad to provide the same upon request, with the understanding that the confidentiality of the document will be maintained.

We do oppose an unredacted copy of the exhibit being published on the PSC website. The confidentiality designation was made in good faith, has been narrowly tailored, and is well-founded. Given the nature of the sensitivity analysis requested by the Commission for this late-filed exhibit, details of Dominion's financial modeling process could be derived from the confidentially designated information. That modeling process is proprietary to the Company and it is in the interests of both shareholders and customers not to publicly divulge information which could lead to the discovery of this proprietary information. The same rationale has applied to designating other modeling information presented in the pre-filed testimony and during the course of the hearing by the Company as confidential, and on at least one occasion during the hearing an objection to such designation was overruled by the Commission.

Thank you and I hope this helps to resolve this issue.
